Family Enterprise Consultant

For the past eight years, Ted Ramsey has used his legal, financial, and interpersonal skills to enhance the value of his family's businesses and lead the family to embrace a multi-generational vision of family success. Ted believes that the hard and ongoing work of identifying core values and attending to the family's human and intellectual capital are indispensable to its long-term prosperity. By enhancing opportunities for honest and open dialogue among all generations, Ted seeks to foster a family culture that can respond to the many challenges--seen and unforeseen--that all families face.

Ted is the manager of his family's limited partnership and is actively engaged with other family entities, including multigenerational oil and gas mineral trusts. His business activities include real estate investment and management, oil and gas leasing, and trustee relations and accountability. Ted consults with other families and their advisors to support resilient and thriving systems.

Prior to focusing full time on his family's business interests, Ted was the Director of Energy Services for Hybrid Energy Group, LLC where he led the creation of a solar investment fund and the development of solar projects in Colorado. Ted's previous employment centered around his desire to work in under-served, mostly Spanish-speaking communities. Ted was a Peace Corps volunteer in Honduras. He practiced immigration law for non-profits in Baltimore and Denver and taught fourth grade to English-language learners in Denver.

Ted obtained a B.A. in Spanish from the University of Texas. He holds a J.D., with honors, from the University of Arizona College of Law and an M.S. in Finance from the Daniels College of Business.

Ted is an active board member of Step Denver, a residential recovery program for homeless men. Ted's other interests include beekeeping, exercise, and outdoor activities. He is married and the father of two college students.
